Headline:
Dry but cloudy with some fog overnight. Rain later Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Mostly dry during the evening and overnight, with variable and often large amounts of cloud, especially in the south. Perhaps periodically clearer and colder in the north, however this is likely to lead to areas of fog given light winds. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Friday:
Starting dry and cloudy, with areas of fog. Some limited brighter intervals perhaps developing as winds pick up, ahead of a band of rain making inroads eastwards later. Becoming mild. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Relatively high uncertainty. Perhaps brightest early on in an overall mild but rather wet Christmas Day. Probably unsettled Boxing Day with brighter interludes. Perhaps returning to more prolonged rain Monday.
